This talk “jump starts” the cross cultural, social and communication skills of computer science students, providing them with knowledge and insights for being effective players in the global business arena. In particular, we’ll talk about cross cultural challenges of working in the global business arena—challenges of geography, culture and language, cross cultural awareness, sensitivity and communications.

Yair Paz is Business Development Manager & Trainer at Globaleyes, Israel’s top cross-cultural consulting and training company, with over 24 years of international experience.