"Mindsets and Conflict Resolution: Finding Common Ground"

Wednesday, April 21st, 2010, at 16:00

Room: A110

Arison-Lauder Building, the IDC Herzliya Campus

Carol S. Dweck, Ph.D., is one of the world’s leading researchers in the field of motivation and is the Lewis and Virginia Eaton Professor of Psychology at Stanford University. Her research bridges developmental psychology, social psychology, and personality psychology, and examines the self-conceptions people use to structure the self and guide their behavior. In her studies she looks at the origins of these self-conceptions, their role in motivation and self-regulation, and their impact on achievement and interpersonal processes. She has held professorships at Columbia and Harvard Universities, has lectured all over the world, and has been elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Her scholarly book Self- Theories: Their Role in Motivation, Personality, and Development was named Book of the Year by the World Education Federation.

The lecture will be conducted in English
