Abstract of the Play
The play explores the psychological effect of the Second Intifada on Israeli society. The play tries to understand how a young woman, a nurse by profession, devoted to her father and her family, becomes involved in an act of extreme violence that leads to the death of innocent people. In a kaleidoscope of fragmented testimonies, one story bursts into another until a weave of broken realities and multiple truths unfolds in a unique theatrical language. The group again grapples with a challenging issue on the public agenda, and is invited to take part in an international project on the subject of global terrorism, featuring theater companies from Norway, Germany, France, Serbia, Britain and Israel.

The play will take place in Hebrew with English subtitles
The Discussion will take place in English
