THE HERZLIYA CONFERENCE – Hanukah 2003

Dr. Uzi Arad, Head of the Institute for Policy and Strategy, chaired the fourth annual Herzliya Conference on the Balance of Israel’s National Security this past December at the Dan Accadia Hotel. This year’s conference, entitled “Setting National Priorities,” dealt with a wide array of national and international issues on the top of the nation’s agenda. The Herzliya Conference is widely recognized as the most important and prestigious gathering of its kind in Israel. The conference brings together, under academic auspices and in a nonpartisan informal setting, an exclusive group of top Israeli and international leaders from the pertinent fields – government, the private and corporate world, the defense and intelligence communities, political circles, and major Jewish world organizations. These leaders gather annually to deliberate the paramount issues impinging on Israel’s prosperity and security. Within four years, the conference has become the stage for the articulation of national and regional policy, and where leaders announce major policy initiatives. In particular, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon chose the Herzliya Conference as the venue to unveil his major foreign policy initiative, in what is popularly known as “The Second Herzliya Address,” on unilateral disengagement from the Palestinians.

Ambassador Zalman Shoval, Chairman of the IPS Board of Directors, joined Dr. Arad and IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman to chair the closing sessions. Prof. Reichman spoke about the need for new leadership, saying, “A great leadership will transform the end of a difficult period in our history into the launching pad for a new period, a period in which we will grow stronger and in which there will be a new hope and belief.”

The conference attracted leaders from around the world who are committed to Israel's future, including many IDC supporters from Israel and abroad.
FRIENDS

Israel Friends of IDC (IFIDC)

The activities of the Israel Friends of IDC (IFIDC) got off to a grand start with a gala evening in February. Dozens of IDC's most dedicated supporters inaugurated both a new club of IDC friends from around Israel that will meet regularly and the lobby of the new Arison-Lauder Building. Itschak Shrem, Chairman of the IFIDC Board, and his wife Yochi initiated the new club with the assistance of fellow IFIDC board members Rimon Ben-Shaul, Orna Brenner, Pini Cohen, Evelyne Douek, Shmuel Frankel, Tammy Haimovsky, David Hodek, Tsvika Kaiyam, Amir Makov, Chemi Peres and David Tamir and Chairman of the IDC Board of Directors Oudi Recanati. The Mila Brenner-BMW Foundation and Polar Communications of Shrem, Fudim, Kelner and Company Ltd. cosponsored the event.

Yochi Shrem opened the evening by outlining the new club's aims. IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman then elaborated on the IDC motto of "Liberty and Responsibility," noting the many voluntary activities that the IDC community is involved in. The guest of honor, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Industry and Trade Ehud Olmert, spoke about the need for leadership at times of crisis and praised the IDC alumni. Proceeds from the event went toward scholarships.

American Friends

The American Friends of IDC (AFIDC) and the North American headquarters of the Raphael Recanati International School have moved into their new home in New York City. (Their new address and contact information are: 15 East 26th Street, Suite 1809, New York, NY 10010; tel. 212-213-5961; fax. 212-213-6436; and email Info@AFIDC.org) The new office will allow the recently installed board of directors, chaired by Sam Zell, to expand AFIDC's efforts to build support for IDC in the US and make IDC a household name in Jewish communities around the US. The board of directors will be working with AFIDC Executive Director Shlomit Manson, Office Manager Shlomit Elbaz, and Shira Sitton of the Raphael Recanati International School to this end.

During IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman's and IDC Vice President Jonathan Davis' visit to California in January, AFIDC Board members Drs. Rebeeca and Arie Beldegrun hosted a cocktail reception for fellow AFIDC Board members Sheldon and Miri Adelson and Stewart and Linda Resnick and friends interested in learning about IDC in their Los Angeles home. Prof. Reichman spoke to the group about IDC's accomplishments over the past decade. Longtime IDC supporters Sass and Eta Somekh hosted a brunch in San Jose at which Jonathan Davis gave a presentation about IDC to the Somekh's' friends. Between meetings and events, Jonathan Davis, who is also the Acting Director of the Raphael Recanati International School, interviewed several candidates from the Los Angeles area who are considering studying at the school.

Jonathan Davis and Shlomit Manson traveled to Palm Beach and Miami in February to speak at The Palm Beach Orthodox Synagogue in Palm Beach and Florida Atlantic University. Karen Marcus and Dr. Steven Silvers hosted a desert gathering at their home in Aventura.
British Friends of IDC

On his recent trip to the U.K., IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman spoke before the Israel Business Club, which Amnon and Malka Leon established in London. Prof. Reichman met with IDC supporters and alumni during the trip aimed at establishing a board of directors for the British Friends of IDC.

RAPHAEL RECANATI INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL

IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman and his wife Nira invited Raphael Recanati International School students and faculty members to their home to celebrate Hanukah. Over 80 students and faculty members attended the candle lighting ceremony, an event which is becoming an IDC tradition. The Reichmans open their home every year to Raphael Recanati International School students and other IDC students whose families are not in Israel. Dr. Alisa Rubin Peled, of the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy, hosted an open house at her Ra’anana home in January for government students from the Raphael Recanati International School. Faculty and staff from both the Lauder School and the Raphael Recanati International School also attended. In addition to the IDC community, the international students have also become acquainted with foreign diplomats serving in Israel and representatives of immigrant organizations and associations at recent events.

The Raphael Recanati International School continues to host groups of students and youth from around the world who are interested in learning more about Israel and educational options here. Recent visitors include delegations from UIA Canada, Young Judea, Hillel, Birthright, the South African Encounters program, Turkey, and Germany. The school's staff is also continuing its efforts, with the assistance of the Jewish Agency for Israel, to provide educators and professionals in Israel and abroad with information about the school's programs.

CONFERENCES AND SEMINARS

Israel and Wider Europe

European statesmen, including the foreign ministers of Belgium and Germany, Louis Michel and Joschka Fischer, traveled to Israel in February to participate in the conference on Israel and Wider Europe that IDC and its Radzyner School of Law organized in cooperation with the Friedrich Ebert Foundation and the European Union-Israel Forum. The conference was "a declaration and demonstration of a new, open dialogue between the leaders of the European continent and those of Israel and the Israeli public," IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman said. He called on the Europeans to reach out to the Israeli people as this would help foster peace and understanding for all the people of the region. Ambassador Avi Primor coordinated the conference and is helping IDC establish a European Center. The conference provided European leaders such as Michel Rocard, a former Prime Minister of France and current member of the European Parliament, and Rocco Buttiglione, Italy's Minister for European Union Policies, with an opportunity to discuss Israeli-EU cooperation with their Israeli counterparts, such as Ministers Silvan Shalom, Binyamin Netanyahu and Ehud Olmert, in an apolitical, academic setting.

The Trilateral Indo-Israeli-US Strategic Dialog

The International Policy Institute for Counter Terrorism (ICT), in a joint enterprise with the Harold Hartog School of Government and Policy at Tel Aviv University, held the second annual trilateral conference on the strategic ties between India, Israel and the U.S. in February. The conference series was initiated by the Washington-based Jewish Institute for National Security Affairs (JINSA) and inaugurated last year in New Delhi. A wide range of topics relating to the potential synergetic benefits involved in the trilateral relationship were discussed and debated. This series of trilateral meetings plays an important role in promoting the relations between the three nations, not only by reinforcing matters of consensus (such as the war on terror and stability in the Indian Ocean) but also by addressing issues of contention (such as Iran and Pakistan).

The Economic Impact of Global Terror Risks

Leading figures from the financial and security sectors convened at IDC in January to examine the "Economic Impact of Global Terror Risks." Dr. Rafi Eldor and Prof. Rafi Melnick, both of the Arison School of Business, presented their research showing that the rise in terrorism in recent years has not affected the value of the shekel. Though they found that terrorism has affected the Israeli stock market, they concluded, "The financial markets in Israel demonstrated significant resistance to the strengthening of terrorism over the past three years. Anyone who thought that he could use terror to devastate Israel economically is mistaken." The Caesarea Edmond Benjamin de Rothschild Center for Capital Markets and Risk Management and the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) cosponsored the conference.

Coping with Suicide Terrorism

Researchers from the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) exchanged ideas with their Russian counterparts in late November at a seminar on coping with suicide terrorism. ICT research fellows lectured about the theoretical and practical aspects of suicide terrorism among Palestinians and other populations. The Russian researchers spoke about suicide terrorism in Russia and Chechnya.

The Leadership Displayed by Yitzhak Rabin

Second-year students of the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy hosted some 200 guests at a seminar in January on “The Leadership Displayed by Yitzhak Rabin.” Dalia Rabin-Pelossof, the daughter of the former prime minister, joined former tourism minister Uzi Baram at the event, which was organized by Dr. Aran Schloss, Vice Dean of the Lauder School.
Countering Cyber-Terrorism

Over 100 directors of information systems gathered at the IDC campus to learn about cyber-terrorism at the conference that the Efi Arazı School of Computer Science and the People and Computers company co-sponsored in January. The speakers included International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism Executive Director Dr. Boaz Ganor and Dr. Anat Bremler-Barr, of the Arazı School.

Israeli Computer Vision Day

Some 150 academics and professionals participated in the Israeli Computer Vision Day conference, which the Efi Arazı School of Computer Science hosted in December. Leading Israeli experts gave lectures on the latest innovations in computer vision. IDC and the Caesarea Edmond Benjamin de Rothschild Foundation of the University of Haifa cosponsored the conference.

CEREMONIES AND EVENTS

Remembering Prof. Ehud Sprinzak z"l

The IDC community came together in November to mark the first anniversary of the death of Prof. Ehud Sprinzak z"l, Founding Dean of the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy. IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman and Vice President Jonathan Davis spoke about their experiences with and warm memories of Prof. Sprinzak. Several of his former colleagues then spoke, including Prof. Shlomo Avineri, an Israel Prize laureate and emeritus professor at the Hebrew University who is now a visiting professor at IDC; Prof. Amnon Rubinstein, a former Minister of Education who is now Dean of the Radzyner School of Law; Prof. Zeev Sternhell, of Hebrew University; and Prof. Galia Golan, of the Lauder School. Prof. Sprinzak's widow Ricki and members of the family also attended the ceremony.

Former Wharton Dean and Israeli State Attorney Join IDC in Recognizing Excellence

IDC recognized students who have achieved excellence in academia at two ceremonies in January. Russ Palmer, Chairman and CEO of the Palmer Group and formerly the dean of the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania, gave the annual Zoltan Wind z"l Lecture on “The Leadership Challenge” at the ceremony for business, government and computer science students. Prof. Palmer discussed society’s need for leaders and the importance of training leaders that are capable of meeting challenges such as envisioning goals, motivating, and managing. The Zoltan Wind z"l Scholarship was awarded to an outstanding student at the ceremony. In a separate event the following day, State Attorney Edna Arbel gave the keynote address at the ceremony honoring outstanding law students.

Prof. Alan Dershowitz Lectures at Radzyner School of Law

Over 300 students from the Radzyner School of Law came to hear the lecture Prof. Alan Dershowitz, of Harvard University, gave to the Constitutional Law course in December.
Prof. Dershowitz opened the lecture by describing his great regard for Prof. Amnon Rubinstein, Dean of the Radzyner School of Law, saying that he is proud that people describe him as "the Amnon Rubinstein of the United States." He went on to discuss the PR challenges that Israel faces abroad because much of the world holds it to a different standard than other states. Prof. Dershowitz then addressed the issues that democratic countries must contend with in fighting terrorism, saying that existing legislation infringes upon their ability to function.

Leading Author and Supreme Court President Launch New Book

Author Amos Oz was the guest lecturer at an event in January to launch Israel and the Family of Nations, a book written by Prof. Amnon Rubinstein, Dean of the Radzyner School of Law, and Dr. Alex Yacobson. Several days later, the book was the subject of seminar at Yad Ben Zvi in Jerusalem. Supreme Court President, Justice Aharon Barak, participated in the seminar.

IDC Reaches out to Youth in Underprivileged Neighborhoods

The Hand in Hand with Academia project, in which IDC students provide individualized tutoring to Herzliya pupils from underprivileged neighborhoods, officially began its fourth year of operation with a ceremony in December.

Pupils participating in the Middle School in Academia program, which provides eighth-grade pupils at the Reut Middle School with a taste of higher education, presented the final projects for the marketing segment of the program at a festive event on campus in January. The pupils spend four hours each Sunday throughout the academic year learning about marketing, law, and economics from IDC students. For the final project, the pupils developed new products or marketing plans for issues such as preventing drug abuse and preserving the environment.

ICT Trains Future Negotiators to Handle Hostage Situations

Pupils at the IDF National Defense College for Youth learned practical skills for dealing with hostage situations at a simulation organized by the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT). The pupils were divided into groups representing the Israeli government, the kidnappers, and the media. The simulation was the highlight of the course on terror that the ICT staff teaches at the defense college.

Global Research Center in International Affairs (GLORIA) Has an International Impact

The Global Research Center in International Affairs (GLORIA) and the Public Affairs Office of the American Embassy in Israel cosponsored a digital videoconference in February. Experts from Israel and Washington DC discussed "Iran: the Reform Movement and the Elections" at a closed roundtable session. GLORIA also orchestrated a videoconference with New Zealand in December. GLORIA Center Director Prof. Barry Rubin, author Etgar Keret, and Dr. Ariel Merari spoke to parliament members, journalists, and dignitaries who had gathered at the New Zealand Parliament’s Beehive Theatrette in Wellington. The event allowed Keret to exchange ideas with New Zealand’s leading author, Lloyd Jones.
NEW PROJECTS AND PROGRAMS

New Arison-Lauder Building Opens its Doors to Students and Faculty

Construction of the new Arison-Lauder Building was recently completed, allowing students and faculty to enjoy this beautiful and comfortable building. Ada Carmi, one of Israel's most celebrated architects, designed an elegant structure that is conducive to both formal and informal learning. In addition to the Arison School of Business and Lauder School of Government, the new building provides a home for several of the IDC research institutes, facilitating interaction between research fellows, faculty members, and students. Ceremonies to officially dedicate the building will take place later this year.

Studies Commence at Efi Arazi School of Computer Science’s New M.Sc. Program

The Efi Arazi School of Computer Science launched its M.Sc. program this semester. The 30 students in the rigorous, four-semester program all have a strong background in research and have worked in companies such as Cisco, Sun, Converse, and Mercury, or have served in IDF intelligence and computer units. The program is designed especially for students who are interested in pursuing a career in research or academia.

New Minor in Risk Management

Undergraduate students can now opt to minor in risk management. The new program, which is being offered through the Caesarea Edmond Benjamin de Rothschild Center for Capital Markets and Risk Management, is designed for outstanding third-year students and will focus on topics such as options and futures, financial risk management, and insurance.

IDC Embarks on Project to Reinvent Israeli Government

The IDC has decided to embark on a project to “Reinvent Israeli Government.” The project aims to improve governance in Israel by increasing accountability, transparency, responsiveness to citizens, effectiveness and efficiency. A series of policy papers has been published which research various aspects of governance in Israel and suggest reforms. Prof. David Nachmias, of the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy, is coordinating a conference that will be held later this month to discuss the papers. The conference is expected to attract elected and appointed government officials, academics, and the general public. IDC is launching a worldwide campaign to encourage those concerned about Israel's future to sponsor the project.
ICT Research Group Focuses on Terrorism and the Media

Prominent radio journalist Dalia Yairi is heading a research group formed by the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) to explore terrorism and the media. ICT Chairman Shabtai Shavit and journalist Danny Rubinstein were among those at the group's recent meeting.

GLORIA Center in the United Kingdom and Australia

The Global Research Center in International Affairs (GLORIA) will be producing a series of policy briefs for British Israel Communications and Research Centre (BICOM) in England. GLORIA also regularly supplies articles to the Australia/Israel and Jewish Affairs Council (AIJAC) in Australia for publication in the Australian press. One of the GLORIA Center's major focuses is producing the Middle East Review of International Affairs (MERIA), an electronic journal with illuminating articles that are often utilized by international authorities and academics. The British government was strongly criticized last year for publishing an intelligence report that contained a MERIA article without citing the article's source, giving the impression that the government had produced the article.

IDC Launches “Leaders Needed” Publicity Campaign

IDC launched a publicity campaign titled “Leaders Needed” to mark its 10th anniversary. The campaign was designed to reinforce IDC's reputation as a leading institution of higher education for the next generation of leaders in a variety of arenas and to bring IDC to the attention of potential applicants. The campaign includes television, internet and newspaper publicity showing a series of street signs bearing the names of Israel's foremost leaders, such as David Ben-Gurion, Menachem Begin, Yitzhak Rabin, and Vladimir Jabotinsky. This is followed by a blank street sign, a screen reading "Leaders Needed" and an invitation for future leaders to enroll in “The School For Future Leaders – the Interdisciplinary Center Herzliya.”

AWARDS, HONORS AND APPOINTMENTS

The Mitsubishi Electric Research Labs appointed Dr. Shai Avidan, of the Efi Arazı School of Computer Science, to be a guest researcher.

Dr. Leah Epstein, of the Efi Arazı School of Computer Science, has been appointed associate editor of the international academic journal Operations Research Letters.

The Ministry of Science and Technology appointed Dr. Boaz Ganor, Executive Director of the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT), to its new National Committee for Technological Solutions to Defend Civilian Infrastructures from Terrorism. The committee will locate and direct the research and development of new technologies for the defense of the home front in order to facilitate coordination between various official and governmental bodies.

The Israeli Center for Intelligence Heritage granted Dr. Isabelle Ginor the Aharon Yariv Memorial Fellowship for research on intelligence, media, disinformation and psychological warfare for her article in the MERIA journal and the research it is based on. The paper was presented in January at the award presentation and conference convened by that the State Department History Department.

Prof. Aaron Kirschenbaum, of the Radzyner School of Law, has been appointed honorary president of the Jewish Law Association.

Two of the three Israelis selected to be IBM 2004 Scholars are Efi Arazi School of Computer Science faculty members: Prof. Shimon Schocken, IDB Professor of Information Technology and the school's dean, and Dr. Yishai Feldman. The IBM research fund will provide them with grants to conduct research projects in programming. Students in the school's new M.Sc. program will be involved in the research.

Caesarea Foundation Deputy Chairman Avraham Biger has been appointed chairman of the board of the Caesarea Edmond Benjamin de Rothschild Center for Capital Markets and Risk Management.

Prof. Oded Sarig, Shrem, Fudim, Kelner Professor of Finance and Dean of the Arison School of Business, has been appointed chairman of the Caesarea Center's academic committee.

Tammy Zadok has been promoted to Vice President for Media, Marketing and Communications. IDC's activities in these areas have grown significantly over the past few years thanks to Ms. Zadok's hard work as director of Media, Marketing and Communications. She has an MBA from IDC and extensive experience in the media.

Hamutal Livnat-Strum has been appointed Assistant to the IDC President, Prof. Uriel Reichman. She previously directed the admissions department at IDC. Ms. Strum is a graduate of the Arison School of Business.

Michal Inbar, an alumna of the Arison School of Business, has been appointed the new director of the admissions department.

GUESTS

IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman hosted a number of guests from around the world recently, including Harry Radzyner of Germany; Solomon Berkowitz, founder of the Machon Simon Foundation, and Mira Fritz, the foundation's representative in Israel; Mark Chais; Ralph Goldman of Jerusalem; Bob Stewart and Allan Gelfond of Detroit; Stephen and Marilyn Kaplan of the United States; Carol and William Fox of Canada; Oren Tanhum of Intergamma Investments; Alex Rechter of Rechter Investments; and Meir Nissanson and senior executives from IBM.
Several IDC supporters recently visited IDC to see the latest developments on campus. Ruth O. Freedlander, of the Dr. Bernard Heller Foundation, and Yitzchak Shavit, of the United Jewish Communities, examined the progress on the expansion of the Dr. Bernard Heller Foundation Library and made plans to return later this year for the dedication ceremony. Efrat Peled and Shlomit Defries of the Arison Foundation toured the new Arison School of Business Building in December.

Enthusiastic IDC supporter Steven Stern has made three special visits to Israel in the past year, participating in the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism’s third international conference on Post-Modern Terrorism: Trends, Scenarios and Future Threats in September, the Herzliya Conference in December, and the Trilateral Indo-Israeli-US Strategic Dialog in February.

Zohar Zisappel and Daniela Ilan of the Rad Binat Company presented scholarships and stipends to three students in the Keren Or Program at the Efi Arazi School of Computer Science in January.

Pe’er Sneh, advisor to the UNESCO director-general and head of the Israel delegation to UNESCO, met with Prof. Abraham (Rami) Friedman, Dean of the Lauder School of Government, to discuss cosponsoring an international conference of research institute directors on the relationship between research institutes and decision-makers.

Dr. Boaz Ganor, Executive Director of the International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT), hosted several foreign politicians recently. He gave security briefings to Australian parliament member Wayne Swan, Gary Stritel, the deputy foreign minister in the British shadow government, and the Finnish Ambassador to Israel, Kan Eijalainen.

Leaders From Around the World Give Guest Lectures in IDC Classrooms

A number of leading figures from the high-tech industry spoke to students as part of the Efi Arazi School of Computer Science's Window on the Industry lecture series. Speakers included: Dr. Amir Kishon, CEO of DietWatch; Tamar Naor, former CEO of Sphera; Dr. Ran Gazit, chief scientist of Persay; Dr. Yaron Valpshtall, of the IBM Research Lab; communications consultant Hank Nussbecker; and Dr. Yossi Tulpan, former CEO of a company that conducts research on algorithms.

The Efi Arazi School of Computer Science hosted a series of distinguished guest lecturers at research seminars. The lecturers included: Dr. Nathan Peterfreund of the Oak Ridge National Lab; Dr. Amir Shpilka of the Weizmann Institute; Prof. Martin Golombeck of Haifa University; Dr. Aran Halperin of Princeton University; Dr. Ehud Ben-Shahar of Yale University; Dr. Ziv Bar-Yosef of the IBM Almaden Research Center; Dr. Tammy Tamir of Washington University; Dr. Ram Pinhasi of MIT; Danny Hendler of Tel Aviv University; and Dr. Ehud Charlain of Oska University.

A series of distinguished scholars and public figures have been guest lecturers in some of the courses Prof. Amnon Rubinstein, Dean of the Radzyner School of Law, taught last semester. In January, Interior Minister Avraham Poraz spoke. Abu Hajla Tarik, Supervisor of the Arab Sector in the Central District, Education Ministry Director-General Ronit Tirosh, and former Education Ministry Director-General Dr. Shimshon Shoshani, who now is the director of Taglit-Birthright Israel, addressed the Law and Education class.
Some of the leading figures from the world of Jewish non-profit organizations are spending several weeks at IDC to teach students in the new MBA Program in Jewish Leadership, which Prof. Armand Lauffer directs. The speakers include Prof. Gerald Bubis, Dr. Leonard Fein, Rabbi Levi Lauer, Prof. Arthur Naparstek, Stephen Solender, Prof. Jacob B. Ukeles, and Prof. Yael Yishai.

Nir Stern, the deputy director general for marketing at Pelephone, lectured at the Arison School of Business on developing a successful brand name. Danny Perklasky, CEO of A.C. Nielsen Israel, gave a guest lecture in Dr. Sharon Horsky's course on market research. Eitan Casif, CEO of Telgal, which measures television viewing preferences in Israel, spoke to MBA students in Dr. Yaron Timmor's course on marketing communications. Meirav Shapira, CEO and partner at Marketing Information, a leading Israeli consumer research and services firm, spoke to undergraduate students in the market research course. Dr. Alon Peled gave a lecture on "The Impact of Indian Programmers on the American High Tech Industry" to government students in the Firm in the Global Market course in January.

The Arison School of Business has hosted a distinguished series of speakers in its weekly seminar program. Recent lecturers included Prof. Dina Maislin of Yale University, Oded Netzer of Stanford University, Prof. Dan Horsky of the University of Rochester, and Prof. Eyal Biyalogorsky of the University of California at Davis.

ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

The IDC Alumni Association Business Club held a special meeting in February to celebrate IDC's tenth anniversary. Some 250 enthusiastic alumni came to the meeting. Following a lecture by Yossi Vardi, former chairman of Mirabilis Ltd., on “The Thin Line Between Success and Failure,” alumni who have been successful in various arenas participated in a panel discussion on initiative, management and ambition. The panelists included: MK Meli Polishook-Bloch, chairperson of the Knesset Science and Technology Committee; Uri Nadler, CEO of Walla Shops; attorney Rami Attias; attorney Guy Noff of the Casutto Noff law firm; Amir Rachmut, an analyst at Singer-Barnea Ltd.; Ido Mor, CEO of a successful local radio station; Sigal Kalmanson, director of products and strategy at Comverse; and journalist Niv Raskin of IDF Radio and the Sports Channel. The Alumni Association also launched the Alumni for Alumni Project, which is designed to encourage IDC alumni to assist one another in developing their careers by exchanging advice and information, at the meeting.

IDC alumni and third- and fourth-year students learned about the option of continuing their studies in the US at an event in early December that the Alumni Association and Student Union co-sponsored with the United States-Israel Educational Foundation. Speakers from the Fulbright program provided helpful, practical information about types of educational institutions, standardized tests, the admissions process, tuition expenses and scholarships, and student visas.
Arie Ben-Josef, who graduated from IDC in 1999, returned to campus in December to speak to his fellow alumni about his experiences in the MBA program at Queen's University in Canada. Several alumni who are planning to study abroad in the near future found it extremely helpful to hear firsthand information about what awaits them.

Shira Garber, an alumna of the Efi Arazi School of Computer Science, gave a presentation about IDC to University of Pennsylvania students. She told them about the programs at the Raphael Recanati International School and the exchange program between the Arazi School and Penn, in which she participated.

IDC continued to maintain its bond with alumni who now live abroad by holding a reunion in February for alumni who are working and studying in London. IDC President Prof. Uriel Reichman, Vice President Jonathan Davis, and Campaign Director Yael Yativ updated the alumni in London about recent developments at IDC and the activities to celebrate IDC’s 10th anniversary.

The Alumni Association is currently planning a series of class reunions in June as part of IDC’s Decade of Leadership celebrations.

SPORTS

IDC Athletes Score a Series of Victories

After a rocky start on the first day of the International Academic Sports Association (ASA) Winter Games in Eilat in March, IDC Athletic Director Ilan Kowalsky brought all the IDC athletes together for a pep talk. He encouraged them to attend each other’s competitions and cheer on their fellow students. The next day, to the rousing cheers of their classmates, IDC athletes won three gold medals. The women’s performance was especially impressive; IDC’s female athletes took first place in beach volleyball, windsurfing and tennis. Tennis player Hila Rosen maintained first place rank despite facing especially fierce competition from the Wingate Institute. The men’s squash team took third place. The IDC men also competed successfully in windsurfing, chess, tennis, and karate.

In addition to their studies and training for the 2004 Olympic Games in Athens, IDC students Arik Zeevi, Omer Izhaki, Udi Vaks and Yoni Arami are preparing to compete in the ASA Judo Championship in March. Zeevi recently won the European Championship in Paris, which guaranteed him a spot in the Israeli delegation to the Olympics.

IDC Vice President Jonathan Davis placed first in the Masters 55-59 age group category in the five-kilometer race in Kochav Yair with a time of 19 minutes, 41 seconds. He completed the 12-kilometer Tiberias Run Masters in 50 minutes and 28 seconds, first in his age group. He also placed first in the Ein Gedi Masters in the 10-kilometer race, out of a total of 70 runners competing in that age category, with a time of 43 minutes in very windy conditions. He says that he finds running relaxing and a great way to see the beautiful Israeli countryside.

Prof. Shimon Schocken, Dean of the Efi Arazi School of Computer Science, participated in a 90-kilometers bicycle ride from Sde Boker to Ein Yahav, going mostly through the Tzin Desert. He lost five pounds and regained them immediately afterward, since the group with which he rides has a tradition of following each ride with a party in which each member is supposed to consume enough pastries to replace every calorie burned in the ride.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

IDC Students Participate in Israel@Heart Delegation of Israeli Students to the Hague

Israel@Heart, which sends delegations of Israeli students to speak about life in Israel to groups around the world, sent a large delegation of students to the Hague to participate in the demonstrations against the hearings on the security fence in Israel. The delegation was lead by Joey Low, the founder and indefatigable leader of Israel@Heart. The delegation included a number of IDC students who are committed to showing the international community Israel's side of the story. The students participated in the marches, demonstrations and other activities. The Israeli students were very visible and received extensive media coverage, making a strong case for Israel.

Government Studies Go Beyond the Classroom

Students at the Lauder School of Government, received a firsthand view of Israeli politics and first-year students visited the Knesset and second-Israeli-Arab sector at meetings in Yafia, Sachnin, and Baka al-Gharbiya with members of the municipal authorities and other leaders. Third-year students learned about the three branches of government through visits to Supreme Court Justice Jacob Turkel, Yuval Rachlevsky, the Ministry of Finance Supervisor of Wages, and the Knesset. Students of all three years had a chance to meet foreign diplomats serving in Israel at an event on campus.

IDC Berman-Lippa Family Foundation Debating Club is the Largest in Israel

The IDC Berman-Lippa Family Foundation Debating Club has developed into the largest debating club in Israel, with some 70 members. The debating club recently hosted the English-language Israeli debating championship at the IDC campus. Debating club chairman Yaron Chayat and deputy chairman Jacob Shwergold made it to the finals. The debating club sent a delegation to Singapore in December to compete against representatives from some 30 countries in the World Debate Championships. The IDC delegation ranked first among the European teams from countries in which English is not the primary language. The debating club was equally successful at a new independent competition that Tel Aviv University held in February. The club is now preparing for the Israeli competition for first-year students and the European championship.
IDC Student Union Conducts Warm Winter Campaign

This past semester, the IDC Student Union organized a number of community service projects, many of which focus on the growing income gap in Israeli society. One of the most successful projects was the Warm Winter campaign. Students collected clothing, food, toys, blankets, heaters, and other contributions from the IDC community and the general public to pass on to those in need and charitable organizations.

After learning that an IDC employee was having financial difficulties because his three-month-old child had to travel to Boston for an operation, the Student Union launched a campaign to assist him. Students, faculty, and staff made an effort to help a member of our community through a difficult period.

During the Hanukkah vacation, many students stocked up on doughnuts, sweets, toys, balloons, and flowers and headed to hospitals in the central region to cheer up patients of all ages.

IDC Entrepreneurship Club

With the assistance of Ben Harel of Delta Venture, the IDC Entrepreneurship Club expanded its activities and launched a series of small forums, limited to 15 participants, which allow students to have an in-depth discussion with entrepreneurs. Abraham Bar-El, CEO of the Golan Industrial Park, and Israel Eshed, CEO of the Golan Tourist Association, spoke with students about developing northern Israel at the first forum. Entrepreneur Ofer Konfeld, who sold the company he established to Converse, spoke at the second forum. The club also is continuing to organize lectures that attract larger groups of students. Advertising executive Rafi Tsarfati, Itai Shaked of Derech Haya'in, and Gil Peretz, who heads an Israeli organization dedicated to the art of doing business, also spoke on campus recently.
